Multiple-Award Winning Novels

Reckoning

Book One of The Many Deaths of Dynamistress Superhero (Science Fiction)

The only thing young Dinah Geof-Craigs wanted to be when she grew up was a famous, super-powered meta-human. But puberty came and went without the genetic gift she felt she deserved. So she determined to correct Mother Nature's "oversight." Even if it killed her.

Redemption

Book Two of The Many Deaths of Dynamistress Superhero (Science Fiction)

Dynamistress has fulfilled her dreams... a member of one of the most respected super-teams in the nation, her face on the cover of Supers magazine, even her own fan club! But a deep, lingering guilt makes her question whether she deserves any of it, and even if she's really doing the right thing.

One Nation Under God

Dystopian (General Fiction)

Eleven year-old Mary Christopher is the daughter of the President of the United States in the not-too-distant future. This is the story of her coming-of-age in a nation rife with social unrest, and the devastating discovery that her idolized father is to blame for much of the turmoil.

Wish You Were Here

Fantasy

An atypical fantasy story, wherein a teenage Earth boy's contemporary attitudes and beliefs are taken to task on an alien world. This is the story of his coming-of-age in unfamiliar surroundings, full of adventure, tragedy, fame, fortune, romance... and his search for a way home.

Vincent M. Wales was raised in the small town of Brockway, Pennsylvania, where he frequently complained about the weather. Since then, he has worn many hats, including writing instructor, suicide prevention crisis counselor, essayist, Big Brother, freethought activist, wannabe rock star, and award-winning novelist.

He spends most of his writing time in coffee shops, since his cats fail to grasp the entire concept of "writing time."

He currently lives in Sacramento, California, where he frequently complains about the weather.
